For ten years we have been teaching people to help themselves. Because we listen to the communities and help them in the ways they say work best, because we provide integrated projects, we enable people to transform their own lives; but they cannot do it without our help.

There are 54 Kids for Kids villages in Darfur where we lend 6 goats to a family for 2 years - then pass 6 to another family. Your donation doubles in value. We teach people to look after their animals. Children in our villages wake up to milk every day. There is veterinary care. Healthy animals mean healthy children. Donkeys make travelling possible.

Our midwives save the lives of mothers and babies every day. First aid workers treat simple problems so that they do not become catastrophes.

Malnourished children are at risk from chest infections - we are teaching their mothers to knit and we are giving warm jumpers for toddlers. Our trees are growing where once there was desert. Most important of all, there is a Kids for Kids handpump nearby. Water that used to take hours to reach.

Children need not be malnourished today, in Darfur.
